

Race2Recovery is the first disabled team ever to enter the Dakar Rally, the world's toughest motorsport event. Comprised predominantly of British and American servicemen, wounded in action, the team has set out to prove that serious injuries are no barrier to extraordinary achievement, and to raise money for the Tedworth House Personnel Recovery Centre.

Race2Recovery had significant issues with overheating due to the sweltering heat of the South American desert, as described: "The water wetter that you supplied was fantastic, we had a problem with one of cars overheating while competing in the Dakar Rally and we used the wetter water which helped lower the running temperature of the car and help us finish the race. Thank you again for all your help and support".

Old Hall Performance would like to congratulate the team on their outstanding achievement completing the Dakar Rally 2013. The team's motto 'beyond injury – achieving the extraordinary' is well deserved. We look forward to hearing the teams' plans for 2013 and beyond and look forward to working with the team again on the harshest motorsport environment of all.
